1. Although Siam is sending several delegates to the Southeast Asia Cultural Conference to be held in New Delhi on 23 March, the Siamese government suspects that the meeting is an opening maneuver in India's campaign to assert her influence throughout Southeast Asia.

2. Principally because of this suspicion, the Siamese government is sending Nai Manot Vudhadit to the Conference for the sole purpose of studying the political motives behind it.
3. Although the original Conference invitations emphasized that it was a cultural meeting of minds, seven of the eight discussions listed on the agenda have political implications.
